

DoD AND OSD COMPONENT HEADS

In DoD issuances, the most common terms you will see that describe types of leadership are “DoD Component heads” and “OSD Component heads.”

WHAT ARE THE DoD COMPONENTS?

- Office of the Secretary of Defense
- Office of the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Joint Staff
- Combatant Commands
- Office of Inspector General of the Department of Defense<sup>1</sup>
- Military Departments
- Defense Agencies
- DoD Field Activities
- Other organizational entities, which includes the National Guard Bureau

This is all covered in the standard DoD issuance applicability statement below:

1.1. APPLICABILITY. This [issuance] applies to OSD, the Military Departments, the Office of the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Joint Staff, the Combatant Commands, the Office of Inspector General of the Department of Defense, the Defense Agencies, the DoD Field Activities, and all other organizational entities within the Department of Defense (referred to collectively in this issuance as the “DoD Components”).

WHO ARE THE DoD COMPONENT HEADS?

In DoD issuances, think of the DoD Component heads as the leaders of all the above organizations (the Secretaries of the Military Departments, Directors of the Defense Agencies, etc.)—with the exception of OSD. Why?

Notice that OSD as a whole is also considered a DoD Component. By law, the Secretary and Deputy Secretary of Defense are the “heads” of OSD. Therefore, if you assign responsibilities to the DoD Component heads, the responsibilities you give to OSD by default are actually being assigned to only the Secretary and Deputy Secretary and no other OSD officials. Suffice it to say, it is unlikely that the Secretary and Deputy Secretary will carry out those responsibilities or delegate them to OSD officials.

It is the job of the issuance’s office of primary responsibility to assign responsibilities to relevant OSD officials directly. This is where the term “OSD Component head” comes into play.

WHO ARE THE OSD COMPONENT HEADS?

If you need to collectively refer to high-level officials within OSD, call them the “OSD Component heads” in DoD issuances. The OSD Component heads, also known as Principal Staff Assistants, are:

- Under Secretaries of Defense
- Director of Administration and Management
- Inspector General of the Department of Defense
- General Counsel of the Department of Defense
- Director, Cost Assessment and Program Evaluation
- Director, Operational Test and Evaluation
- Assistant Secretary of Defense for Legislative Affairs
- Assistant Secretary of Defense for Special Operations and Low Intensity Conflict
- DoD Chief Information Officer
- Assistant to the Secretary of Defense for Public Affairs
- Director, Net Assessment

If OSD Component heads have the same responsibilities as DoD Component heads, they can be combined in one paragraph: “OSD and DoD Component Heads.” If you need to refer to the Assistant and Deputy Assistant Secretaries of Defense under these OSD Component heads, you can just say “Assistant Secretaries of Defense” and/or “Deputy Assistant Secretaries of Defense.”

HOW DO YOU COORDINATE WITH THE DoD COMPONENTS?

Military Departments. Select them on the DD Form 106.<sup>2</sup>

Combatant Commands. Select the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff on the DD Form 106.

Defense Agencies and DoD Field Activities. Select the OSD Components under whose authority, direction, and control the Agency or Field Activity is organized. The organizational relationships between owning OSD Components and Defense Agencies and DoD Field Activities are outlined in the tables below.
