Skip Sharp and I have been working this with Gen. Barneo.

On the basis of this SecState Dec 8 letter to Zal, we've suggested that Gen. Barneo get underway ~~the~~ planning for a comprehensive Afghan security force development effort, including police.

But Gen. Barneo contends persuasively that he needs ^{more} authority, including authority to direct State/INL resources, so an NSPD, as ^{we} originally envisioned, may be necessary.

Barneo, Skip and I are drafting it, with help from the lawyers. I'm informing

SUBJECT: INL Police Training

Zal,

We appreciate your efforts and those of your mission in the crucial job of training the Afghan national police. Results so far have been impressive: the Afghan Government has deployed over 31,000 newly trained police in 18 months. I read carefully your message recommending how we might better organize ourselves to accomplish this task.

There seem to me three essential components for continued success and even greater achievement in the future. First, is your clear authority over the police training program as Chief of Mission. Second, is to make sure that the International Narcotics and Law Enforcement section of your Embassy is working in the most effective way possible to get more policemen into Afghan society. Third, that CFC-A and the O&C have greater involvement, under your direction, in the police training effort.

To accomplish these three tasks, I ask that you ensure the following:

- The head of the INL section of your embassy should report directly to you on all issues dealing with counterterrorism.
- The head of the INL section of your embassy should report to you, through the O&C chief, on issues connected to training, equipping and assisting the Afghan police forces. You should ensure that O&C-A keeps you fully and currently informed on all efforts to train and equip Afghan military and police. I expect from you regular reports on the results of these coordinated efforts.

We are pleased that one of our finest INL officers, Richard Baca, most recently DCM in Colombia, will arrive soon to head the INL section in Afghanistan. I am confident that, with your continued interest, the adjustment in the reporting chain for police training matters, and Mr. Baca's enthusiasm and expertise, the program will continue to succeed under your direction.

We look forward to your reporting as we move ahead.
