ARGENTINA

NATIONAL ELECTIONS RESCHEDULED.

~~(C/NOFORN)~~ The government has announced that national elections scheduled for 17 October -- Peronist Loyalty Day -- will be postponed, probably until November or December.

~~(C/NOFORN)~~ This change was necessitated by an electoral law prohibiting elections more than six months before an incumbent administration's term expires; President Peron finishes her term on 25 May 77. Last year, Mrs. Peron had moved the elections from March 1977 to October 1976 in an attempt to disrupt any military plans for her ouster. The most recent change will give the President additional time to attempt to patch up differences between opposing factions within the Peronist organization. Nonetheless, the move will be seen by the military as a further unsettling factor and is not likely to deter their desire to remove her. ~~(SBS 31 Dec 82)~~
